

PUT / Universal Gallery of Topolò

The ones who come to Topolò, if they like, they can bring a reproduction of a painting that has been significant for the world's art history to donate it to the Gallery.

The painting will be chosen according to criteria that won't be questioned.

They will have it reproduced themselves on a paper sheet measuring max. 21 x 30 cm, with the simplest tool that will be considered suitable (a pencil, a marker, a ballpoint pen...), using the least amount of colors they consider possible.

It will be a drawing, not a painting.

To the drawing they will attach the donation form filled in with the requested data (theirs and of the painting).

They will take care of the framing, without exceeding 25 x 35 cm and protecting the drawing with a glass. A digital scan / photo of the drawing will be needed for the Gallery archive.

The whole of the donated works constitutes the Gallery's heritage.

The exhibition spaces will be selected for being capable of hosting permanently all the works and will be open to the public during the period of Stazione Topolò.

These spaces will be marked by a permanent plate.

The digital archive will be run and updated by the curator.

This collection, besides being public property, also gathers data for an experiment of cultural topology that will be defined by the origin, geographical and historical, of the reproductions and the models of each single work.
